Pleiades XXXII California Red Wine

The object of Pleiades is to be delicious, delight the jaded, irritate the wine police, and go well with anything red wine goes well with. Each component is crafted and aged in small quantities by traditional Thackrey artisanal practices. We produce premium single-sourced varietal wines, then age them individually before blending into the final composition. Sangiovese, Tempranillo, Carignane, Pinot Noir, Viognier, and Petite Sirah all play a role in this performance.

Tasting Notes:

Deep garnet with a concentrated core, suggesting the intensity that follows. Mulled blackberry aromas dominate, layered with whispers of savory spices that invite deeper contemplation. There's an intriguing complexity that unfolds slowly with each inhalation. Black cherry and burgundy plum, so ripe it brings one to the point of reverie. The fruit is balanced by subtle earthy undertones and those continuing savory spice elements, perhaps clove, star anise, and a hint of black pepper. A wine of substantial presence with well-integrated tannins that provide framework without harshness. This is a wine that doesn't asked to be liked, it asks to be understood.
